The Court having assembled pursuant to order, proceed to examine witnesses.

First Witness: B-155412 Sigmn. Fox, C. L., 1 Cdn. S.W. Gp., R.C. Signals, states:

"I was one of a party of 17 Canadian soldiers of this unit who were invited (through an Australian Comforts Organization) to spend the week-end of 2 Mar to 4 Mar 45 at various private homes in Nambour, Buderim and vicinity. Sigmn. D.J. Green and I were guests of Mrs. Edith G. Smith at Buderim, Queensland, Australia.

Saturday afternoon, 3 Mar 45, Mrs. Smith, her daughter Miss Shirley Neilson, Sigmn. Green and I went for a short motor drive and arrived at the beach at Maroochydore, Queensland, at about 1530 hrs. All four of us went bathing, which consisted mainly of playing in the surf where the water between waves was about knee depth. The waves themselves were rolling in about 12 to 15 feet apart, and were large enough to splash over our heads. We were diving through them, jumping on the crests to ride them a few feet in, etc.

Mrs. Smith went back to the beach about 1700 hours, Miss Neilson about 1730. Sigmn. Green and I remained together another 15 minutes or more. There were no other persons in the water at that time. I am a fairly good swimmer, but Green could not swim. I warned him that neither of us should go out too far on account of the undertow, which I had noticed before strikes one unawares. About 5:45 P.M. we were both suddenly caught by the undertow and found ourselves in deep water. Green clung to the belt of my bathing trunks and I tried to swim ashore towing him. We were able to keep afloat but could make practically no progress, due to the undertow and to the waves breaking over us, choking us and making it difficult to breathe. Green called for help three or four times. I only called twice, as I was saving my wind to swim for both of us.

M.F.B. 303
500M—12-42 (7535)
H.Q. 1772-39-133

I could see people standing in the water to our l... us and shore. It seemed as if they were waiting to see wh... we really needed help. I learned later that they were in d... that we were in serious trouble. No help came for several mi... utes, perhaps ten minutes. It seemed a long while to me. Finally I saw a man running through the water toward us, perhaps 200 feet away, but could not see that he had anything with him that could help us. I felt that when he arrived he would be in as great peril as we were, and would be unable to help.

By this time I was exhausted and unable to support Green any longer. I knew that if we did not separate we would both be drowned. I was forced to wrench myself free from Green's grasp to keep myself from drowning. I then found that I could make some progress toward shore. We had been unable to talk to one another as we were choked by the waves.

As I swam toward shore I was met and passed by a Life Guard who had passed the man I mentioned before. The Life Guard had a rope around his waist, which was being handed out from a reel on shore by another Life Guard standing in the water. The Life Guard who passed me was going fast, running and swimming, as he went by me in Green's direction.

Before I reached shore I met Shirley Neilson, also running and swimming. She passed me, going toward Green. I went ashore to recover my breath and strength. Within two or three minutes I saw that Shirley was in difficulty, waving to me for help. I went out toward her, holding on to the Life Guard's rope, and she was able to make her way to me by swimming some 20 or 30 feet to where I was still holding the rope and extending my other arm toward her. If we had not held on to the rope, we would have lost it. We were able to swim ashore holding on to the rope.

We went to Shirley's mother (Mrs. Smith) on the beach, and tried to see where Green might be in the water. Mrs. Smith saw him first and pointed him out to us. This seemed to me to be about 15 minutes from the time I had last seen him before. I ran out to knee depth and picked him up, some 200 or 300 feet to the right and much closer inshore than I had last seen him. He appeared to have been swept by the current that far from where the Life Guard was searching.

Some men helped me get Green ashore, and I started artificial respiration. After about four strokes I found I was too weak to continue properly, and was relieved by a man. I remained about 15 minutes, during which time his pulse continued, and water and foam emanated from his mouth and nose. His face gradually became more blue. I felt chilly and desired to put on my clothes. I was accompanied to a house and was assisted by rubbing and warm drinks. I did not see Green thereafter."

Second Witness

Mrs. Edith G. Smith, Milford Lodge, Buderim, Queensland states:

"Fox and Green arrived at my home about 10 P.M. Friday evening, March 2nd by bus. They were part of a group who had been invited to spend the week-end at various homes. Green had been selected to stay at my home, and Fox came as well. I was expecting two boys. On Saturday we drove to Maroochydore and arrived at the beach about 3:30 P.M. There were lots of people bathing there. Fox and Green, my daughter Shirley and I went bathing. Green was not a swimmer. I came out before the others, who were playing about waist deep in the surf. Shirley came about 5:30. There were few people about then, only an elderly man, his wife and child on the beach. We heard calls from the boys about five minutes after Shirley came in. We thought they were calling her back, but we felt it was almost tea-time and the boys should come out. The calls continued, and we realised they were calling for help. I ran along the sand to opposite where they were swimming. I screamed for help. A man in shorts (a Life Guard) went out with a life line. He gave the line to Fox and Shirley, then went on to try to get Green. But Green had been swept to the right and inshore. Lorne (Fox) and Shirley were towed in or came in along the life line. The Life Saver stayed out to find Green. Others were looking for him too. I saw the body first as it was washed in a hundred feet or more from shore. Artificial respiration was given by the Life Savers and others. The body was recovered about 6 o'clock. Dr. James Trotter, Resident Doctor at Nambour Hospital, arrived about 15 minutes later. I stayed until the doctor pronounced Green dead. Green's personal effects were taken by the Maroochydore police."

Third Witness

Miss Shirley Neilson, Nurse-in-training, Nambour Hospital, states:

"I have been a nurse-in-training for a year. I came home this weekend, commencing my three weeks holiday. I accompanied the boys and my mother to Maroochydore, where we went bathing about 3:30 P.M., March 3rd 1945. We were playing about waist deep. The sand shifts with the waves due to the undercurrent. The boys were still playing when I came out, about 5:30. They called me to go back in. Then we heard them calling for help. I ran to the water and swam out. I noticed the water there was a different colour, darker, so I knew it was deeper and I realised they were in a channel. I met Lorne Fox, attempting to reach shore. Green was a long way further out. I saw him only a couple of minutes. I realised he was being swept away. I turned toward shore. A Life Saver reached us with the line. I pointed out where Green was. The Life Saver went after him with the line. I realized that I also was being washed out. I could not reach shore, and was going down. Fox turned back and helped me in along the line. Another Life Saver was standing waist deep handing out the line.

Five or ten minutes after I reached shore my mother saw Green's body. I was there when the body was taken out. I helped rub his limbs. He was covered with blankets to keep him warm. I felt his pulse after artificial respiration was commenced. There was a pulse in the wrist. I kept holding his wrist, and holding his mouth open. He had already bitten his tongue once. The body was lifted from time to time, and considerable water was discharged. Just before the doctor arrived, it seemed to me the wrist pulse became weaker and finally stopped. I was then cold and shaky, so I tried both wrists to make sure. He still had a pulse in his temple when the doctor arrived, but it was getting weak. There was no breathing, from the time the body was taken from the water. I stayed until the doctor pronounced Green dead. I feel that everything possible was done to save his life."

Fourth Witness

Dr. James Trotter, Nambour Hospital, states:

" At approximately 5:45 P.M., 3 Mar 45, I was summoned from Mooloolaba to Maroochydore to attend an apparently drowned Canadian soldier. On arrival I found him just above water line and receiving attention from life guards, who were applying artificial respiration in a satisfactory manner. He still showed some signs of life as indicated by a carotad pulse. In the absence of a resuscitator I mouth to mouth breathed him while the artificial respiration was continued by the life guards. Meanwhile I dispatched someone for the rocker for further artificial respiration. In spite of all these methods we failed to revive him. There was absence of pulsation five to ten minutes after my arrival, and after 15 minutes all further effort was deemed futile. I then proceeded to the nearest phone and notified the Maroochydore Police as to what had occurred. I remained with the body till the police arrived.
