This Guide provides a general overview of the content of each fonds and collection. In addition to facilitating research, it will serve to further disseminate information about the musical heritage of Canadians. The fonds and collections are arranged in alphabetical order, and a descriptive record has been written for each one. The guide includes the name of the person or organization that created the fonds or collection, the title, file code, inclusive dates, type of record (textual records, audio discs, photographs, etc.), the linear quantity of textual records and number of iconographic, audio, or audiovisual records, a biographical sketch or administrative history, a description of the fonds or collection, and a section for "notes." The "notes" section identifies the immediate source of acquisition, the restrictions specific to each fonds, the availability of finding aids and the existence of any associated material. The guide also contains a name index.
